

Instagram & Meta lead form

Build specification for the marketing team

ClearCaseIQ
September 2026
v1 — ready to build

Five custom questions. Name, phone and email are prefilled from the Meta profile, so they cost nothing and all three should be switched on. Every question below is doing a job no other question can do — this is the floor, not a starting point to add to.

The fields

| QUESTION                | TYPE            | WHY IT'S HERE                                                              |
|-------------------------|-----------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Full name               | Prefilled       | Free from the Meta profile. No typing.                                     |
| Phone number            | Prefilled       | The follow-up channel. Intake needs a phone or an email.                   |
| Email                   | Prefilled       | Second channel, and what provisions their account.                         |
| ZIP code                | Short answer    | Routing is jurisdiction-matched, and venue county moves the valuation.     |
| When did it happen?     | Multiple choice | Statute of limitations. A time-barred lead is worth nothing.               |
| What happened?          | Multiple choice | Maps to practice area so the case routes to the right attorneys.           |
| Have you seen a doctor? | Multiple choice | The strongest case-quality signal available in one tap.                    |
| Already have a lawyer?  | Multiple choice | Hard disqualifier. Soliciting a represented claimant is an ethics problem. |

Two details that matter more than they look

Ask for a ZIP, not a county

California has 58 counties, most people can't name theirs, and it is a miserable dropdown on a phone. Five digits gets the same answer and we derive the county server-side.

Use timing buckets, not a date picker

Day-level precision buys nothing at triage and a date picker costs leads. The buckets are drawn around California's two-year personal-injury deadline, so More than 2 years ago is the disqualifier and the rest sort by urgency.

DO NOT PROMISE AN ESTIMATE ON THIS FORM

Five questions give the valuation engine no medical bills, no diagnosis codes and no liability facts, so it returns roughly $1,000–$4,000 on every lead regardless of how strong the case is. If the creative says "find out what your case is worth", the click has to land on the full intake wizard. Showing a number here would quote a serious injury the same figure as a fender bender.

How it looks to the claimant. Answers shown are illustrative.

Consent text — paste exactly

This is the wording already live on our intake form, written for A2P messaging compliance. Use it verbatim in the form's custom disclaimer rather than writing new copy — two versions in the wild is how one of them ends up wrong. Both policy links must be real, clickable URLs.

Deliberately left off

Each of these was considered and cut. They belong in the full intake wizard, where there is context to ask properly.

| FIELD                     | WHY NOT HERE                                                                                                    |
|---------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Medical bill total        | The single biggest lever in the estimate, but almost nobody knows the figure, and we would re-verify it anyway. |
| Who was at fault          | Needs follow-up questions to be worth anything. One tap produces a guess we would have to discard.              |
| Insurance / policy limits | Claimants rarely have this before a declarations page is pulled.                                                |
| Injury description        | Free text tanks completion on mobile and reads worse than the wizard's structured version.                      |
| Date of birth             | Personal data we have no use for at the lead stage.                                                             |

Two things to hand back to engineering

Tag the campaign

The destination URL needs `utm_source=instagram`, `utm_medium=paid_social` and a `utm_campaign` per campaign. First touch is recorded only when the lead is created and is never overwritten afterwards, so if it is missing on the first click the campaign never gets credit for the case.

If you need it shorter

Cut in this order. Nothing below the line should come out — each remaining question is either a legal disqualifier or the only way to route the case.

HAVE YOU SEEN A DOCTOR?

Cut first

The most valuable of the optional signals, but the only question here whose absence does not break something. Losing it means treated and untreated leads arrive looking identical.

WHAT HAPPENED?

Cut second

Only if the campaign is already segmented by claim type — a car-accident-specific ad set already tells us the answer. Drop it on a general-audience campaign and cases route to the wrong practice area.

ZIP, timing and representation stay in every version of the form.

Leads should not sit in Ads Manager

Someone has to move these into intake, either by webhook or CRM sync. A lead that waits in Meta overnight is a lead a competitor called first. Worth scoping before the campaign goes live rather than after.
